A Word Regarding Hassenbrook

Greetings adventurers, visitors, men, women, and guests of Hassenbrook.

We have gone out of our way to make sure that you have a wonderful stay in our fair and up and coming city.

The rebuilding has been remarkable. New homes and establishments have been built thanks to the newly opened Acme General Store.

The Guilds have rebuilt their Guild halls within the walls of the city. We have been informed that they plan to hold weekly meetings with their members very shortly. Any wishing to join the Earth, Celestial, Tinkers and Smithing Guilds, please see your local representatives.

The food establishments are still in a building stage. The Wolf Song Tavern is still dark on the inside. We have not yet heard from the owners of the Wolf Song but the rumor mill is going strong. Some of the rumors are that Tiernan and Gerda took the money and ran. Others say that the owners were turned into Newts. Yet others are saying that they are elementals that were assuming human form and trying to poison the Duchy. While no rumors are confirmed, please keep in mind that they are rumors, not facts.

Lastly, we hear that Count Basarabe will be making an appearance at the next gathering of Adventurer's since they are within his County. We have heard that he has been extremely busy, so much in fact that he has not had time to sit and drink a mug of ale with anyone. The Guilds and the reconstruction of Rosewood is keeping him more than busy.

That is all for now.

Feel free to look around our fair city. You never know what surprises are in right around the corner.

Bodies Found!

Recently, there have been bodies found around the outskirts of the walls surrounding the city.

When the Trolls were pushed back from the destruction of Gargerrent, some have been found in the woods surrounding the city.

Sources indicate that other beings have been found as well, some human, elf and even dwarf.

The problem, from our eyewitness accounts, indicate that the bodies have been found without any blood in them.

Have vampires escaped Rosewood? Are there more around? Are we safe within the city?

Luckily, no bodies have been found within the city walls.

At least, not yet.

The Fengate Guilds Status Report

Greetings to all who are reading this. I have great news regarding the status of the Fengate Guilds.

After months, almost years, we have finally achieved a scroll library of our own. We have scrolls that we will keep on file within the Guild Library that is located on the Guild Island west of Hassenbrook.

In order to use the scroll library, you must be a member in good standing with the Fengate Guilds as well as have a letter of approval from your local Guildmaster.

The scroll library consists of every formal scroll available with the exception of any Transforms and any Necromantic or illegal scrolls.

If you are a non-member of the Guild, we will allow you to use them to copy but the charge is a slight fee.

The Guilds wish to thank each and every adventurer who donated and copied scrolls for us.

The scrolls that were missing were filled by the gracious Evendarrian Guilds from Evendarr City.

Over the last few years we have suffered greatly at the hands of our enemies.

Through work and persistence, we are still breathing and living in our cities that we fight to defend.

Fengate was founded on the Guilds and we will take back what is ours throughout the Duchy.

We are beginning to have portals available for speedy travel. Please see your local Guildmaster for information on such things.

The April River Watch

By : Captain Abrahms

"I am one of the best river ship captains in Western Evendarr"

You all know that I am one of the best river ship captains in Western Evendarr. I know that I do not need to remind you often. That is why I am happy to report that my territory remains pretty calm as always.

The waters still are lightly traveled. I do not foresee this thing changing until you all get those trade cities up and going again. There have been some new ships in the area that seem to have come from the west of Fengate. They have been relatively quiet so I see no cause for alarm.

Otherwise, no strange creatures or ghost ships have been spotted. The worth thing that I have encountered out here is a shortage of rum due to lack of trade.

Does anyone know of a good batch that has recently come in need of a Captains' consumption?

New Barony Confirmed?

In January we brought you reports of a possible new Barony around the Rosewood area.

This month, we have a very close source to the discussions that have confirmed that the new Barony is true.

"It is needed on the Northeast side of the Duchy, not only for the people but also for defense," is heard from Count Basarabe himself.

"We have a gapping hole in our defenses and if our enemies find out, Gargerrent will be open for attack."

It is this reporters hope that the discussions do not go on for long as we are housed in Gargerrent. It would not be good reporting if we were in the middle of any attacks on the Ducal city.

Or maybe it would?

H a s s e n b r o o k N e w s

Hassenbrook has become the booming center of trade for us in Fengate.

Over the last few months, there have been dozens of reports of robberies around the city. Most believe that it is the work of sewage creatures but no one can seem to confirm how the perpetrators got into the buildings.

The Bank of Fengate owner and operator Willard Gets fears for the safety of his bank, his customers and the money that the bank contains. "I have lived here for quite a long time. To be honest, I fear for the citizens of our fair city and their money."

Over the last year, the Bank of Fengate is the biggest financial building in all of the duchy. Thousands of gold and platinum are within the confines of its vaults.

"I have the latest in protection when it comes to protecting the investment interests of my customer," states Mr. Gets.

Other business fear for their wares and the rampant robberies continue to take place around the city.
